Jules Verne Timothy Unwin, 2005-10-01 A hundred years after his death Jules Verne 1828 1905 has in the popular imagination become synonymous with prediction of the future Yet the actual texts of Verne s major novels the vast series known as the Voyages extraordinaires still remain unknown to many In the English speaking world translations of Verne s best known novels Around the World in Eighty Days Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas Journey to the Centre of the Earth From the Earth to the Moon have often contained wholesale distortions of his plots and characters and the popular and false image of Verne as a foreteller of the future often comes not through what he actually wrote but through films and other adaptations of his work It is against this background of misrepresentation and misconception that the present study has been produced Verne was Unwin argues a master of the self conscious novel his work a pastiche of science discourse fictional and non fictional writings and flamboyant theatrical narrative Unwin makes a compelling case for Verne as a master of the nineteenth century experimental novel in the company of Gustave Flaubert and other canonical French writers The text will be a wonderful addition to the shelves of those interested in science fiction experimental writing and critical theory Hollywood Presents Jules Verne Brian

The Plot Machine Kai Mikkonen, 2001 This book presents a new and exciting theory of the modern French novel by developing the notion of the narrative as a textual machine Many turn of the century French novels thematically identified their means of narration through the various machines that they depicted The narrative devices that were particularly important in this self reflection included the temporal order of the plot the question of a narrative's beginning and end the hierarchy of narrative voices and the techniques of the point of view The question of mechanization became central on all these fronts Has the novel become automated or machine like At the same time the machine metaphors in the novels of Alfred Jarry Emile Zola Jules Verne Villiers de l'Isle Adam Raymond Roussel combined the question of the narrative form with new ways to think about man's relationship with technology and the cultural environment The early modernist texts drew upon contradictory notions of technological promise and threat while they also depicted new forms of identity and behavior related to or modeled after machines These texts highlighted cultural assumptions concerning technological innovations and critiqued mainly through parody and through various figures of man machine fusion the positivistic belief in progress Such writers looked for evidence of advanced forms of consciousness arising out of encounters with new technology such as telephones trains bicycles telegraphy phonographs and electricity This volume will be of interest to anyone working in the field of modern French literary and cultural history It will especially appeal to anyone intrigued with the origins of the modernist novel the history of narrative forms and the question of how the experience of new technology may be portrayed in literary texts
