Correspondence Analysis and West Mexico Archaeology C. Roger Nance, Jan de Leeuw, Phil C. Weigand, Kathleen Prado, 2013-12-15 Because the archaeology of West Mexico has received little attention from researchers large segments of the region's prehistoric ceramic sequences have long remained incomplete This book goes far toward filling that gap by analyzing a collection of potsherds excavated in the 1960s and housed since then though heretofore unanalyzed at UCLA The authors employ the rarely used statistical technique known as correspondence analysis to sequence the Long Glassow collection of artifacts The book explains how correspondence analysis works and how it can be applied in archaeology In addition to describing the archaeological sites in north central Jalisco where the collection comes from the authors provide an ethnohistorical overview including information on the earliest Spanish explorers to reach the sites They sequence more than seventy ceramic types and derive a master sequence from more than ten thousand potsherds In addition to Mesoamerican archaeologists the audience will also include other archaeologists concerned with ceramic analysis or the application of statistics to archaeology The Mesoamerican World System, 200-1200 CE Peter Jiménez, 2020-08-27 This is the first application of the comparative approach of world systems analysis in Mesoamerican archaeology Alternative Pathways to Complexity Lane F. Integrating Zooarchaeology and Paleoethnobotany Amber VanDerwarker, Tanya M. Peres, 2010-01-22 In recent years scholars have emphasized the need for more holistic subsistence analyses and collaborative publications towards this endeavor have become more numerous in the literature However there are relatively few attempts to qualitatively integrate zooarchaeological animal and paleoethnobotanical plant data and even fewer attempts to quantitatively integrate these two types of subsistence evidence Given the vastly different methods used in recovering and quantifying these data not to mention their different preservational histories it is no wonder that so few have undertaken this problem Integrating Zooarchaeology and Paleoethnobotany takes the lead in tackling this important issue by addressing the methodological limitations of data integration proposing new methods and innovative ways of using established methods and highlighting case studies that successfully employ these methods to shed new light on ancient foodways The volume challenges the perception that plant and animal foodways are distinct and contends that the separation of the analysis of archaeological plant and animal remains sets up a false dichotomy between these portions of the diet In advocating qualitative and quantitative data integration the volume establishes a clear set of methods for 1 determining the suitability of data integration in any particular case and 2 carrying out an integrated qualitative or

C. Taçon, 1998 Pictures painted and carved in caves and on open rock surfaces are amongst our loveliest relics from prehistory This pioneering set of sparkling essays goes beyond guesses as to what the pictures mean instead exploring how we can reliably learn from rock art as a material record of distant times in short rock art as archaeology Sometimes contact period records offer some direct insight about indigenous meaning so we can learn in that informed way More often we have no direct record and instead have to use formal methods to learn from the evidence of the pictures themselves The book's eighteen papers range wide in space and time from the Palaeolithic of Europe to nineteenth century Australia Using varied approaches within the consistent framework of informed and proven methods they make key advances in using the striking and reticent evidence of rock art to archaeological benefit Mathematics and Archaeology Juan A.
