Chinas Entrepreneurial Army Studies On Contemporary China:

China's Entrepreneurial Army Tai Ming Cheung, 2001 China's Entrepreneurial Army offers a fascinating insight into the complex interwoven relationship between state power military burden and economic prosperity in today's China. From the early 1980s to the end of the 1990s the People's Liberation Army went into business to make up for falling defence spending. It established the world's largest military business complex comprising thousands of army-owned enterprises stretching into virtually every corner of the Chinese economy and overseas. This participation in business gave the military substantial economic strength and allowed it to adapt to the changing locus of power and authority in China in the reform era which was increasingly measured through economic might. But the rapid ascent of the military commercial juggernaut also sowed the seeds of its ignominious demise. Corruption, smuggling and profiteering became so rampant that the political reliability of the military and the health of the Chinese economy began to be undermined. In 1998 the armed forces were ordered to get out of business. Tai Ming Cheung traces the origins, examines the participation and details the demise of the Chinese military business complex. This path-breaking study is a uniquely comprehensive and in-depth account of this Byzantine and opaque institution and provides a vivid portrait of the corporations, military units, personalities and other entities that were at the heart of this commercial powerhouse. Based upon extensive research of primary source Chinese publications and field work, China's Entrepreneurial Army looks at the role of the military business complex from a number of different perspectives: its success as a commercial venue, the impact on civil-military relations and the broader benefits and drawbacks of this commercialism on military professionalism and economic modernization in China and elsewhere. A New Direction for China's Defense Industry Evan S. Medeiros, Roger Cliff, Keith Crane, James C. Mulvenon, 2005-12-19 Since the early 1980s a prominent and consistent conclusion drawn from research on China's defense industrial complex has been that China's defense production capabilities are rife with weaknesses and limitations. This study argues for an alternative approach. From the vantage point of 2005 it is time to shift the focus of current research to the gradual improvements in and the future potential of China's defense industrial complex. The study found that China's defense sectors are designing and producing a wide range of increasingly advanced weapons that in the short term are relevant to a possible conflict over Taiwan but also to China's long-term military presence in Asia. Part of a larger RAND Project AIR FORCE study on Chinese military modernization, this study examines the current and future capabilities of China's defense industry. The goals of this study are to 1 Entrepreneurship in China Keming Yang, 2016-04-29 The emergence of China as a major world economy is of great importance to the global political economy and to international business. There has been much research on the macro level of institutional reform but little detailed work on the grassroots level of entrepreneurship in China. This innovative book addresses this gap by investigating how an economic system dominated by central plans, communist ideologies and suppressing bureaucracies could generate such energy from the bottom of society fuelling the country's economic growth.

Keming Yang's theory of entrepreneurship is based on two interrelated concepts: double entrepreneurship and institutional holes. He argues that the two concepts bridge a gap between the neo-classical institutionalism of economic development and entrepreneurship studies that emphasize individual choice. The rigorous theoretical framework is supported by substantial empirical research offering statistical analyses of survey data as well as detailed case studies. This timely book will appeal to an interdisciplinary readership in sociology, economics, business studies, and Chinese and Asian Studies. China Networks

Jens Damm, Mechthild Leutner, 2009. Networks ranging from village level to transnational level have always played a crucial role in Chinese society. The contributors to this volume aim to trace the interaction between various networks which have existed from the 19th century to the present day. The articles deal with theoretical concepts, historical examples such as non-state responses to the North China Famine 1876-1879, the role of missionaries in the modernization of China, and disaster management including recent inter-ethnic business competition in Hong Kong, Han settlers in Xinjiang, temple festivals in Macau, and urban migrants' social networks in today's China. By drawing on new material and theoretical frameworks, these studies shed fresh light on the ways in which various forms of networks have shaped Chinese society while at the same time questioning traditional and rigid perspectives of Chinese society based solely on networks and guanxi. State Capacity

Building in Contemporary China. Hiroko Naito, Vida Macikenaite, 2020-03-26. This volume explores the governing mechanism employed by the Chinese Communist Party (CCP) in the light of state capacity building. It is built on the premise that regime type notwithstanding, boosting state capacity and utilizing it in their political survival is of crucial concern for any political leader. Xi Jinping, who is no exception to this, has called for the necessity to expand state capacity while he aims to centralize the power under the party. This volume stands out as it offers a comprehensive view of Chinese party-state, especially under Xi Jinping. The research presented here is built on the analysis of authentic datasets and materials. It examines the CCP's relations with various state organs in the Chinese political system: mainly administrative organs, legislature, the people's congresses, judicial branch, the people's court system, as well as the military, the People's Liberation Army, and state-owned enterprises. This volume attempts to bring China closer to the field of comparative politics, making it a more comparable case.

China's Brain Drain to the United States. David Zweig, Chen Changgui, 2013-11-26. First Published in 1996. Beginning in 1979, the government of the People's Republic of China, hoping to catch up with Western science and technology, decided for the first time since 1949 to send large numbers of students and scholars to the West to study. Suddenly, China found itself in the same situation as many developing countries: sending their best and brightest to the United States triggered a brain drain, and with it the threat that the strategy of sending people abroad to catch up might backfire. But will these people return? In order to investigate, the authors carried out 273 interviews with Chinese students, scholars, and other former residents of the People's Republic of China who are currently residing in the United States. The interviews had a wide geographical distribution within the United States, taking place in Boston, New York, Buffalo, Albuquerque, and several centers in California.

Chinese Civil-Military Relations Nan Li, 2010-04-05 This new book addresses three key issues What has changed in Chinese civil military relations What can account for changes And what are the implications for Chinese security policy and strategic behaviour It tackles these questions by sharply assessing civil military dynamics in elite politics such dynamics in national security and arms control policy relations between commanders and political commissars relations between the PLA and society civil military dynamics regarding defence economics and logistics and such dynamics regarding dual use technologies and defence industry These analyses build into the central theme that the emphasis of Chinese civil military relations is shifting from politics to military tasks This is an extremely important new development by a nation many predict to become a super power in the twenty first century This is therefore essential reading for all students and scholars of strategic and security studies Chinese studies and international relations

China's Military Procurement in the Reform Era Yoram Evron, 2015-06-26 The decisions that shape the policy of weapons procurement are an important area of national security policy This is all the more true for China which during recent decades has vacillated between different sources and directions of military build up This book explores the politics of military procurement in China under the successive leaderships of Deng Xiaoping Jiang Zemin and Hu Jintao It shows how China s political and military leaders have sought to adjust military procurement policy to meet China s strategic objectives to relate it to non military needs to strike a balance between the import of weapons and indigenous production and to determine the connections between hardware and other components of military power Exploring in detail five major shifts in the nation s military procurement it traces the considerations and negotiations among China s civilian and military leaderships By doing so it offers both a conceptual framework and empirical grounds for evaluating the factors that shape China s military procurement directions as well as their limitations prospects and operational implications As the first book to study comprehensively and systematically the attributes shaping China s military procurement it will be of great interest to students and scholars of

Chinese politics Chinese history and military and strategic studies If China Attacks Taiwan Steve Tsang, 2010-04-05

This is a new analysis of the key issues facing Chinese policy makers in their approach towards Taiwan This is one of the most tense and potentially explosive relationships in world politics This book explains succinctly the impetus the methods and the consequences if China is to use force a prospect that has become greater following the return of President Chen Shui bian to power in Taiwan for a second term in 2004 If China Attacks Taiwan shows how in reality there can be no real winner in such an eventuality and how the consequences would be dire not just for Taiwan and China but East Asia as a whole Whether China will use force depends ultimately on how its policy making apparatus assess potential US intervention whether its armed forces can subdue Taiwan and counter US military involvement as well as on its assessment of the likely consequences Given the extremely high probability of American involvement this volume appeals to not only scholars and students working on China its foreign policy and the security and prosperity of East Asia but also to policy makers and journalists interested in China s rise and its defense policy Taiwan s security and development regional stability as well as US policy toward China and the East Asia region generally This book is essential for understanding China s efforts to achieve a peaceful rise which requires it to transform itself into a global power not by the actual use of force but by diplomacy backed up by rapidly expanding military power This book is an excellent resource for all students and scholars of military and security studies Asian China Taiwan studies and international relations
