Cuba And The Missiles Crisis:

Cuba and the Missile Crisis: The Soviet Decision to Deploy Nuclear Missiles Ralf Käck, 2002-11-11 Seminar paper from the year 1999 in the subject History of Germany Postwar Period Cold War grade 1 A University of Kassel FB 8 course The United States in the 1960s language English abstract It might perhaps be correct to say that never in history has any historical event assembled such great importance in all of its aspects and been studied in such depth I believe that is fully understandable because never before had humankind been so close to the brink of nuclear holocaust This short statement by Oleg Troyanovsky reveals that the Cuban missile crisis is indeed one of the most studied subjects in U S and Cold War history Ever since the thirteen days in October 1962 there has been a lively discussion about the origins and the management of the crisis Despite an enormous range of opinions and an incredible output of books and articles by participants and scholars of the crisis most of the approaches were limited to studying the events from an American perspective However during the last decade the discussion has continued due to the declassification of secret American documents In fact it gained new speed after they became available for scholars to review One issue that has been heavily disputed since 1962 is the reason for the Soviet missile deployment to Cuba Even after more than 35 years it is unclear why Nikita Khrushchev ordered nuclear missiles to be sent to Cuba Even President John F Kennedy and his advisers in the Executive Committee ExComm could not agree on the reason for the missile deployment The official Soviet explanation states that the missiles were sent to defend Fidel Castro's revolution and to deter American aggression in Cuba However this theory has been vigorously dismissed as facesaving propaganda for the test of will theory which states that the Soviets wanted to probe America's resolve in Cold War politics I will show in this paper that Khrushchev did not send the missiles to Cuba because he wanted to directly challenge Kennedy but rather two reasons were responsible for stationing strategic missiles 90 miles off the U S coast After reconsidering the defense of Cuba theme it becomes apparent that the Soviets and the Cubans believed that the deployment of troops and finally nuclear missiles was necessary to save Cuba This threat perception was not known to the United States Secondly American nuclear policy and the Soviet perception of the nuclear situation led to the deployment of Medium Range Ballistic Missiles MRBMs and Intermediate Range Ballistic Missiles IRBMs

Cuba and the Missile Crisis Carlos Lechuga Hevia, 2001 No longer silenced by its ties to the Soviet Union Cuba now voices its sense of betrayal in the Khrushchev Kennedy deal In a postscript to the Missile Crisis story Lechuga describes a secret approach from Washington for a dialogue with Havana immediately prior to the assassination of President Kennedy Jacket

13 Days in October Howard Brinkley,2012-12-09 Never has the world come as close to the catastrophic destruction that nearly came to pass in October 1962 The United States and the Soviet Union uneasy allies in World War II but Cold War rivals after the defeat of Germany squared off over the discovery of Soviet nuclear missiles in Cuba This launched 13 days of tense negotiations between the two nations as both President John F Kennedy and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev prepared for the possibility of nuclear war While neither man wanted a war and understood the potential consequences the situation was not merely in their hands Khrushchev faced pressure from Soviets to take a hardline stance against the U S while Kennedy faced the real possibility of a military coup if he did not follow the strong recommendations of his military advisors to destroy the missiles As Attorney General Robert Kennedy said The 10 or 12 people who participated in all these discussions were bright and energetic people We had perhaps amongst the most able in the country and if any one of a half a dozen of them were president the world would have been very likely plunged into catastrophic war Read more about the
