International Perspectives on Child and Adolescent Mental Health N. Singh, Dee Pang, A. Singh, 2000-06-01 There has been a major shift in the way we conceptualize and provide services to children and adolescents with mental health needs We are moving away from the traditional disorder oriented model of treatment to a child centered family focused service delivery system that mandates mental health services in the context of the child s family and social ecology This new system of care has spawned many variations of the model including wraparound services multisystemic treatment MST futures planning and person centred planning As systems of care are different across countries and cultures it is imperative that we share our knowledge and make explicit the lessons we have learned in our attempts to provide services to children and adolescents which focus on improving their quality of life rather than merely treating their psychiatric disorders and psychological problems There is an urgent need to evaluate the various treatments being offered to children and adolescents with mental health needs Empirical data on outcomes will determine the funding and delivery of services As such the latest research on treatment outcomes needs to be disseminated so that new and validated treatment methods can be implemented rapidly

Mental Disorders in the Social Environment Stuart A. Kirk, 2005 Social workers provide more mental health services than any other profession yet recent biomedical trends in psychiatry appear to minimize the importance of their traditional concerns which focus on the social environment that accompanies mental disorders and their treatment In twenty four chapters written by distinguished scholars this book not only calls attention to this emerging problem and challenges conventional mental health beliefs and practices but also raises provocative questions Has social work become too closely associated with psychiatry and too quick to adopt a medical approach Has the focus on the therapeutic relationship negated social work's commitment to social reform Is the social worker marginalized by the emphasis in mental health on biochemistry and psychopharmacology This book calls on social workers and other health care professionals to be more skeptical about diagnosis community treatment evidence based practice psychotherapy medications and managed care
