Craigslist Chicago Uic

Philip Nyden, Leslie
Hossfeld, Gwendolyn Nyden

Craigslist Chicago Uic:

Digitized Lives T.V. Reed, 2014-06-05 In a remarkably short period of time the Internet and associated digital communication technologies have deeply changed the way millions of people around the globe live their lives But what is the nature of that impact In chapters examining a broad range of issues including sexuality politics education race gender relations the environment and social protest movements Digitized Lives seeks answers to these central questions What is truly new about so called new media and what is just hype How have our lives been made better or worse by digital communication technologies In what ways can these devices and practices contribute to a richer cultural landscape and a more sustainable society Cutting through the vast and often contradictory literature on these topics Reed avoids both techno hype and techno pessimism offering instead succinct witty and insightful discussions of how digital communication is impacting our lives and reshaping the major social issues of our era The book argues that making sense of digitized culture means looking past the glossy surface of techno gear to ask deeper questions about how we can utilize technology to create a more socially politically and economically just world Companion website available at culturalpolitics.net/digital_cultures

Public Sociology Philip Nyden, Leslie Hossfeld, Gwendolyn Nyden, 2011-05-04 This book highlights the variety of ways in which sociology brings about social change in community settings assists nonprofit and social service organizations in their work and influences policy at the local regional and national levels It also spotlights sociology that informs the general public on key policy issues through media and creates research centers that develop and carry out collaborative research The book details a broad range of sociology projects The 33 case studies are divided into 8 sections Each section also includes sidebars of include non sociologists writing about the impact of selected research projects In some cases these are interdisciplinary projects since solutions to social problems are often multifaceted and do not fit into the disciplines as defined by universities Further it emphasizes actions and connections This is not armchair sociology where self proclaimed public sociologists just write articles suggesting what government corporations communities or others ought to do The authors are interested in the active connections to publics and users of the research not the passive research process

Cycle of Segregation Maria Krysan, Kyle Crowder, 2017-12-13 The Fair Housing Act of 1968 outlawed housing discrimination by race and provided an important tool for dismantling legal segregation But almost fifty years later residential segregation remains virtually unchanged in many metropolitan areas particularly where large groups of racial and ethnic minorities live Why does segregation persist at such high rates and what makes it so difficult to combat In Cycle of Segregation sociologists Maria Krysan and Kyle Crowder examine how everyday social processes shape residential stratification Past neighborhood experiences social networks and daily activities all affect the mobility patterns of different racial groups in ways that have cemented segregation as a self perpetuating cycle in the twenty first century Through original analyses of national level surveys and in depth interviews with residents of Chicago Krysan and Crowder find that residential stratification is reinforced through the biases and blind spots that individuals exhibit in their searches for housing. People rely heavily on information from friends, family, and coworkers when choosing where to live. Because these social networks tend to be racially homogenous, people are likely to receive information primarily from members of their own racial group and move to neighborhoods that are also dominated by their group. Similarly, home seekers who report wanting to stay close to family members can end up in segregated destinations because their relatives live in those neighborhoods. The authors suggest that even absent of family ties, people gravitate toward neighborhoods that are familiar to them through their past experiences, including where they have previously lived and where they work, shop, and spend time. Because historical segregation has shaped so many of these experiences, even these seemingly race-neutral decisions help reinforce the cycle of residential stratification. As a result, segregation has declined much more slowly than many social scientists have expected. To overcome this cycle, Krysan and Crowder advocate multi-level policy solutions that pair inclusionary zoning and affordable housing with education and public relations campaigns that emphasize neighborhood diversity and high opportunity areas. They argue that together such programs can expand the number of destinations available to low-income residents and help offset the negative images many people hold about certain neighborhoods or help introduce them to places they had never considered. Cycle of Segregation demonstrates why a nuanced understanding of everyday social processes is critical for interrupting entrenched patterns of residential segregation.
