The Ashgate Research Companion to Minimalist and Postminimalist Music

Keith Potter, Kyle Gann, 2016-03-23 In recent years the music of minimalist composers such as La Monte Young Terry Riley Steve Reich and Philip Glass has increasingly become the subject of important musicological reflection research and debate Scholars have also been turning their attention to the work of lesser known contemporaries such as Phill Niblock and Eliane Radigue or to second and third generation minimalists such as John Adams Louis Andriessen Michael Nyman and William Duckworth whose range of styles may undermine any sense of shared aesthetic approach but whose output is still to a large extent informed by the innovative work of their minimalist predecessors Attempts have also been made by a number of academics to contextualise the work of composers who have moved in parallel with these developments while remaining resolutely outside its immediate environment including such diverse figures as Karel Goeyvaerts Robert Ashley Arvo Pärt and Brian Eno Theory has reflected practice in many respects with the multimedia works of Reich and Glass encouraging interdisciplinary approaches associations and interconnections Minimalism's role in culture and society has also become the subject of recent interest and debate complementing existing scholarship which addressed the subject from the perspective of historiography analysis aesthetics and philosophy The Ashgate Research Companion to Minimalist and Postminimalist Music provides an authoritative overview of established research in this area while also offering new and innovative approaches to the subject

The Friction of the Frame Simone Heller-Andrist, 2012-03-07 In her study Simone Heller Andrist applies the Kantian and Derridean parergon to English literature The parergon is a specific type of frame that interacts with the work it surrounds in a fashion likely to influence or even manipulate our reading of the work On the basis of this interaction Derrida's parergon becomes a valid methodological tool that allows a close analysis of the mechanisms involved in the reading process The manipulative force of a textual construct is apparent through the occurrence of friction namely incongruities or gaps we notice during the reading process Friction is thus on the one hand the main indicator of parergonality and on the other the prime signal for a potential conditioning of the reader As readers we not only have to analyze the interaction between work and parergon but must also constantly reflect upon our own position with regard to the text that we read By means of the concept of the parergon we can approach not only paratextual narrative or discursive frames but also intertextual relationships Since the application of the concept is based on a basic textual constellation and an internal mechanism its range is wide and transcends or complements previously established textual categories

Resisting

Gendered Norms Mona Lilja, 2016-04-08 Political scientists have on occasion missed subtle but powerful forms of everyday resistance and have not been able to show how different representations pictures statements images practices have different impacts when negotiating power Instead they have concentrated on open forms of resistance organized rebellions and collective actions Departing from James Scott's idea that oppression and resistance are in constant change Resisting Gendered Norms provides us with a compelling account on the nexus between gender resistance and gender based violence in Cambodia To illustrate how resistance is often carried out in the tension between on the one hand universal globalised representations and on the other local truths and identity constructions in depth interviews with civil society representatives politicians as well as stakeholders within the legal juridical system were conducted

Shared Meanings in the Film

Music of Philip Glass Tristian Evans, 2016-03-03 The study of music within multimedia contexts has become an increasingly active area of scholarly research However the application of such studies to musical genres outside the classical film canon or in television and other media remains largely unexplored in any detail Tristian Evans demonstrates how postminimal music interacts with other media forms focusing on the film music by Philip Glass but also taking into account works by other composers such as Steve Reich Terry Riley John Adams and others inspired by minimalist and postminimal practices Additionally Evans develops innovative ways of analysing this music based on an interdisciplinary approach and draws on research from areas that include philosophy linguistics and film theory The book offers one of the first in depth studies of Philip Glass's music for film considering The Hours and Dracula Naqoyqatsi Notes on a Scandal and Watchmen while examining re applications of the music in new cinematic and televisual contexts The book will appeal to musicologists but also to those working in the fields of film music cultural studies media studies and multimedia
