

What's the Problem?

Kevin drew a very accurate map of three roads he traveled on as he rode his bicycle to school. He measured the distance between Park Lane and Franklin Street with a yardstick. He found that they were consistently exactly the same distance apart and were therefore parallel streets. Elm Avenue was a straight road that crossed Park Lane and Franklin Street making a 60-degree angle at angle 1.

What are the angle measurements for the angles shown in the map?
