1. Investigate systolic and diastolic blood pressure

I would consider this an opportunity to see how people understand the same thing, whether it's a common concept or a more complex one.

2. What is the normal range for blood pressure?

The normal range is 120/80 mmHg.

3. Estimate the mean for each of the two and graph the frequency curve (both separate).

4. How does the mean for each of the two compare with the mean for the whole population? (What might this tell you about the data?)

Yes, the mean for each of the two is 120 mmHg, which is the same as the mean for the whole population.

The data shows that the mean for each of the two is 120 mmHg, which is the same as the mean for the whole population. This suggests that the data is normally distributed. The data also shows that the mean for each of the two is 120 mmHg, which is the same as the mean for the whole population. This suggests that the data is normally distributed.
