Mission Statement

The mission of the Department of Economics is to provide an outstanding liberal arts education that will enable and inspire our students to live personally meaningful and socially productive lives. We achieve this by teaching a rigorous curriculum that integrates the liberal arts, the core functional areas of economics, and the quantitative competencies needed to address the economic and public policy challenges of today and the future. Students will acquire the analytical and decision-making skills that employers in the private and public sectors value, become informed and thoughtful citizens, and better understand how to enrich human welfare in a complex and interdependent world. Because of its emphasis on sound logic and rational thought, a degree in economics is an excellent foundation for pursuing graduate studies in a wide range of disciplines, including political science, law, public policy, business, international studies, and economics.

Overview of the Department

Economics is the study of how individuals, firms, government, and society allocate scarce resources among viable alternatives. Students who major in economics enjoy a broad liberal arts education, while also developing analytical skills to prepare them for employment and graduate school. Students develop their analytical abilities with a core curriculum of theory and applied methods courses. The major offers flexibility such that students may tailor their program electives according to their needs. Consult your adviser for assistance in selecting electives that meet your needs.

The economics faculty is a talented and dedicated cadre of teacher-scholars. The faculty has applied-work experience in organizations such as the Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS), financial and investment banking firms, the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, and defense economics think-tanks. The professors challenge, encourage, and mentor students to reach their potential.

Program Objectives

1. To provide students an in-depth understanding of the fundamental principles and theories that underlie both microeconomics and macroeconomics.

2. To provide students an understanding of one or more of the functional (applied) fields of economics through their upper-level coursework.
3. To help students understand the key elements of the scientific method and learn to utilize and interpret the empirical and statistical methods most commonly found in economic research.
4. To provide students the ability to conduct and present their own independent research in economics.
5. To help students learn how to analyze and critically evaluate ideas, arguments and points of view.
6. To provide students both the knowledge and quantitative skills to be successful in graduate programs in economics, law, public policy, business and other disciplines.

Opportunities Outside the Classroom

Many of our students enjoy the learning and networking opportunities afforded by the Economics & Finance Club. The club hosts speakers, panel discussions and social gatherings. The Department is also home to the Jean Monnet European Union Lecture Series.

After Graduation

Students majoring in economics can find multiple employment opportunities upon graduation. Nearly every industry in the Commonwealth and nation employ economists. Local, state, and federal governments also hire significant numbers of economics graduates. Recent graduates have taken positions at PricewaterhouseCoopers, Deloitte, the U.S. Federal Reserve Bank, Merrill Lynch, Mass Mutual, SunTrust Bank, the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, and the U.S. Department of Defense. Others have gained acceptance to graduate schools such as the London School of Economics, the University of Glasgow, Johns Hopkins University, University of Virginia, Purdue University, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, George Mason University and Indiana University.

Degree Requirements

The department offers a major and minor in economics. Within the major, an optional concentration in mathematical economics is also available.

Bachelor of Arts Degree in Economics

In addition to the successful completion of the University's liberal learning curriculum, the Bachelor of Arts degree in economics requires successful completion of the following major and elective courses:
