Lesson Summary

Sexual Development Hormones released by the ovaries and testes cause sexual development during puberty, a period of rapid growth and sexual maturation that usually starts between the ages of 9 and 15. At the end of puberty, the male and female reproductive organs are fully developed and become fully functional.

The Male Reproductive System The main role of the male reproductive system is to make and deliver sperm.

- ▶ The testes are the main organs of the male system. Two testes are held in an external sac called the scrotum. The testes make sperm in tiny tubes called seminiferous tubules. The sperm mature and are stored in an epididymis. A tube called a vas deferens carries sperm from each testis to the urethra within the penis.
- ▶ Along the way, secretions of several glands form a nutrient-rich fluid called seminal fluid. The combination of sperm and seminal fluids is called semen. Semen leaves the body through the urethra. Contractions eject semen from the penis in a process called ejaculation.
- ▶ A mature sperm cell consists of a head that contains the nucleus, a midpiece that is packed with mitochondria, and a flagellum that propels the sperm.

The Female Reproductive System The main roles of the female reproductive system are to make eggs and prepare the female body to nourish an embryo.

- ▶ The ovary is the main organ of the female system. Each ovary has thousands of follicles, which are clusters of cells that surround an egg. A mature egg moves through the Fallopian tube to the uterus, which is connected to the outside of the body by the vagina.
- ▶ Beginning in puberty, the female body goes through a menstrual cycle, a series of events that prepares the body to care for a fertilized egg. The menstrual cycle has four phases:
 - Follicular phase: An egg matures in its follicle.
 - Ovulation: The mature egg is released from the ovary.
 - Luteal phase: The follicle develops into a structure called the corpus luteum.
 - Menstruation: The lining of the uterus falls away and leaves the body through the vagina if the egg is not fertilized.

Sexually Transmitted Diseases A disease spread during sexual contact is called a sexually transmitted disease (STD). Bacteria and viruses can cause STDs. Chlamydia, syphilis, gonorrhea, and AIDS are STDs.
