Airport Urbanism Max Hirsh, 2016-03-15 Thirty years ago few residents of Asian cities had ever been on a plane much less outside their home countries Today flying and flying abroad is commonplace How has this leap in cross border mobility affected the design and use of such cities And how is it accelerating broader socioeconomic and political changes in Asian societies In Airport Urbanism Max Hirsh undertakes an unprecedented study of airport infrastructure in five Asian cities Bangkok Hong Kong Shenzhen Kuala Lumpur and Singapore Through this lens he examines the exponential increase in international air traffic and its implications for the planning and design of the contemporary city By investigating the low cost informal and transborder transport systems used by new members of the flying public such as migrant workers retirees and Asia's emerging middle class he uncovers an architecture of incipient global mobility that has been inconspicuously inserted into places not typically associated with the infrastructure of international air travel Drawing on material gathered in restricted zones of airports and border control facilities Hirsh provides a fascinating up close view of the mechanics of cross border mobility Moreover his personal experience of growing up and living on three continents inflects his analyses with unique insight into the practicalities of international migration and into the mindset of people on the move

The Connected Company Dave Gray, Thomas Vander Wal, 2014-12-02 With a foreword by Alex Osterwalder The future of work is already here Customers are adopting disruptive technologies faster than your company can adapt When your customers are delighted they can amplify your message in ways that were never before possible But when your company's performance runs short of what you've promised customers can seize control of your brand message spreading their disappointment and frustration faster than you can keep up To keep pace with today's connected customers your company must become a connected company That means deeply engaging with workers partners and customers changing how work is done how you measure success and how performance is rewarded It requires a new way of thinking about your company less like a machine to be controlled and more like a complex dynamic system that can learn and adapt over time Connected companies have the advantage because they learn and move faster than their competitors While others work in isolation they link into rich networks of possibility and expand their influence Connected companies around the world are aggressively acquiring customers and disrupting the competition In The Connected Company we examine what they re doing how they re doing it and why it works And we show you how your company can use the same principles to adapt and thrive in today s ever changing global marketplace
