Vingerhoets, Randolph R. Cornelius, 2012-12-06 Crying is a typical human expression of emotion Surprisingly until now little scientific attention has been devoted to this phenomenon Many textbooks on emotion fail to pay attention to it and in scientific journals there are hardly any contributions focusing on this behavior In contrast there is much interest from the lay public allowing pseudo scientists to formulate theories that have little or no scientific basis Is there any evidence in support of statements that crying is healthy or that not crying may result in toxification How do people react to the crying of others Is crying important for the diagnosis of depression and if so how This book aims to fill this gap in scientific literature Crying is discussed from several perspectives and specific attention is given to methodological issues and assessment Each chapter provides a review and a summary of the relevant scientific literature I Know Why My Daughters Are Crying Dr Yvonne

Commodore, 2013-03-19 According to Givens 2005 women cry five times more frequently than men an average of five crying spells a month Women s tears also flow more than men s which usually well up in the eyes rather than stream down the face like women s tears The average length of a crying spell is one to two minutes Sadness followed by anger sympathy and fear are the reasons most adults give for crying Oftentimes when life brings pain that causes us to cry we may feel that God is far away I Know Why My Daughters are Crying will allow you to experience the closeness and comfort of your heavenly father
