Evolutionary Algorithms, Swarm Dynamics and Complex Networks Ivan Zelinka, Guanrong Chen, 2017-11-25

Evolutionary algorithms constitute a class of well known algorithms which are designed based on the Darwinian theory of evolution and Mendelian theory of heritage They are partly based on random and partly based on deterministic principles Due to this nature it is challenging to predict and control its performance in solving complex nonlinear problems Recently the study of evolutionary dynamics is focused not only on the traditional investigations but also on the understanding and analyzing new principles with the intention of controlling and utilizing their properties and performances toward more effective real world applications In this book based on many years of intensive research of the authors is proposing novel ideas about advancing evolutionary dynamics towards new phenomena including many new topics even the dynamics of equivalent social networks In fact it includes more advanced complex networks and incorporates them with the CMLs coupled map lattices which are usually used for spatiotemporal complex systems simulation and analysis based on the observation that chaos in CML can be controlled so does evolution dynamics All the chapter authors are to the best of our knowledge originators of the ideas mentioned above and researchers on evolutionary algorithms and chaotic dynamics as well as complex networks who will provide benefits to the readers regarding modern scientific research on related subjects

Complex Networks Ronaldo Menezes, Alexandre Evsukoff, Marta C. González, 2012-07-27 In the last decade we have seen the emergence of a new inter disciplinary field concentrating on the understanding large networks which are dynamic large open and have a structure that borders order and randomness The field of Complex Networks has helped us better understand many complex phenomena such as spread of disease protein interaction social relationships to name but a few The field of Complex Networks has received a major boost caused by the widespread availability of huge network data resources in the last years One of the most surprising findings is that real networks behave very distinct from traditional assumptions of network theory Traditionally real networks were supposed to have a majority of nodes of about the same number of connections around an average This is typically modeled by random graphs But modern network research could show that the majority of nodes of real networks is very low connected and by contrast there exists some nodes of very extreme connectivity hubs The current theories coupled with the availability of data makes the field of Complex Networks sometimes called Network Sciences one of the most promising interdisciplinary disciplines of today This sample of works in this book gives as a taste of what is in the horizon such controlling the dynamics of a network and in the network using social interactions to improve urban planning ranking in music and the understanding knowledge transfer in influence networks
