

Beta 1 selective BLOCKERS → work on HEART

"MANBAE"

1. Metoprolol
2. Atenolol (Carters) — prototype
3. Nadolol
4. Sotalol
5. Acebutolol
6. Betaxolol
7. Carteolol

Blocks the beta receptor sites → blocks norepinephrine + epinephrine → decrease MI effect

Adverse effects

- Increase heart rate and blood pressure
- Increase strength of heart contractions
- bronchodilation
- Increase in blood sugar

Beta blockers will inhibit/decrease these effects

- Advantages
 - Does not usually block beta 2 receptors
 - For patients who SOB/asthma or have COPD
 - Will not work on the lungs because only B2 is 1
 - Also for obstructive pulmonary disease and seasonal asthma
- Uses
 - Hypertension
 - Angina
 - Cardiac arrhythmias
- Action
 - Selectively blocks B1/1a 2 receptors in CVD
 - Slows heart rate
 - Decreases strength of contractions

Calcium channel blockers

Relax muscle contraction by inhibiting movement of calcium → with slow down heart rate + conduction
This will open pass blood vessels and decrease the need for O2 consumption, slows MI and HT

1. Diltiazem (Cardizem) — prototype
2. Verapamil
3. Amlodipine — only one that does not affect MI
4. Flunarizine
5. Nimodipine

Actions

- vasodilation
 - peripheral arteries relax → decrease arterial blood pressure
 - This leads to a decrease in systemic vascular resistance → decrease peripheral effect
 - cardiac afterload + amount of resistance the left ventricle must overcome to pump out blood
 - dilation of coronary arteries
 - will allow more blood to flow to cardiac muscle
 - dilation can help prevent a spasm of the coronary arteries — Prinzmetal angina
- decrease conduction
 - will prevent calcium from entering the cell → cells control the strength of heart muscle contraction
 - cardiac output ↓ and this will decrease the cardiac muscle cell's strength of contraction
 - beneficial because it will decrease the oxygen demand of the cardiac muscle
- decrease heart rate
 - calcium channels blocked in — SA (sinus) node
 - will DECREASE the heart rate
 - blocked in the AV (atrioventricular) node
 - will DECREASE the speed of conduction of the electrical impulses
 - Why are we not if for HT — supraventricular tachycardia and atrial fibrillation
 - These are AV conduction abnormalities

Indications

- Hypertension and angina
 - chronic angina
 - chest pain that occurs at rest due to a constriction of the coronary arteries
 - CCBs will keep them relaxed
- Atrial fibrillation or flutter
- Rapid ventricular rate
- HT
- Migraines

Adverse effects

- GI symptoms — N/V and constipation
- Allergic
- legs — normal
- flushing
- peripheral edema
- hypotension

Interactions

- CYP2D6
 - decrease it increases its toxicity
 - Early sign and symptoms are GI related
 - Watch for vision changes
