Cumberland Gap B. F. Stevenson, 2017-11-25 Excerpt from Cumberland Gap A Paper Read Before the Ohio Commandery of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States June 3 1885 The result of his first essay on the mountain section of Kentucky proved to him that the passes into the State were better guarded than he was before aware of and that the wrongs which had been perpetrated by prowling bands of midnight plunderers had roused in the people a spirit of stern and determined resistance to rebel misrule Following his repulse at Wild Cat Gen Zollicoffer fell back on his reserves in Tennessee and after reorganizing his defeated force he attempted at a lower point on the Cumberland river to enforce and carry out the programme of the Confederate authorities in Kentucky by an occupation in force and a subjugation of the people to rebel military law In pursuance of this policy he met at Mill Spring in Pulaski county Ky on the 19th day of January 1862 the National forces under command of Gen George H Thomas Here the first signal defeat of a rebel army was encountered in the overthrow and rout of an army corps together with the death of its commander slain in battle slain in the prosecution of a cause which had the approval of neither his judgment nor his conscience And here too was first revealed to the earnest gaze of the Nation the great qualities for command in the presence of embattled hosts and the still rarer attribute of stern and unyielding tenacity of purpose in the progress of battle which are all possessed by Gen Thomas in so eminent a degree and which time has since developed into grand and majestic proportions Recorded honors shall gather round his monument and thicken over him It is a solid fabric and will support the laurels that adorn it The rebels still held possession of Cumberland Gap notwithstanding their defeat in the field As a strategic point it was deemed an indispensable necessity by both of the parties to the great conflict in which the Nation had unfortunately become involved On the organization of the Army of the Cumberland under Gen D C Buell Gen Thomas was assigned to one of its divisions A portion of the troops previously under his command was still held in the mountain region to restrain and punish predatory incursions and raids into the State and to support the loyal sentiment predominant in that section About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works The United States Army and Navy Journal and Gazette of the Regular and Volunteer Forces ,1905 History of the State of Kansas Alfred Theodore Andreas,1883 Music, Books on Music, and Sound Recordings ,1980 CUMBERLAND GAP A PAPER READ BE B. History of the State of Kansas Alfred Theodore Andreas, 1976

Report, 1862, June 22, Headquarters 7th Division, Army of the Ohio, Cumberland Gap, to Colonel Jas. B. Fry, Florence, Ala[bama]. George Washington Morgan, 1862. This handwritten report is a spirited narrative giving details of the march, the attack, and the success of the Army of the Ohio. A short time after Morgan was forced by Col John Morgan's Guerillas to retreat to the Ohio River, cover of the autograph folder. It consists of Gen George W Morgan's account of taking Cumberland Gap. The report of June 22, 1862, was written to Colonel Jas B Fry, Chief of Staff, Florence, Alabama. Morgan was assigned by Maj Gen Buell to the command of the 7th Division, Army of the Ohio, with the goal of concentrating his forces at Cumberland Ford and to take Cumberland Gap. The narrative report describes the difficulties of traveling on the roads leading to Cumberland Ford and why he instead took an open buggy in order to move forward as rapidly as possible. Morgan describes the circumstances under which he concentrated and organized the 7th Division and reports that he reached Cumberland Ford on the 11th of April and made a reconnaissance of the enemy's position at Cumberland Gap. Morgan reports of ordering an armed reconnaissance to be made and discusses the ensuing skirmish wherein we lost one man mortally and several slightly wounded. Morgan states in his report the rebel papers announced our loss was 150 killed and 300 wounded and that their loss was thirty. This statement is untrue. Morgan details his strategies and plans of attack and in the report expresses his gratitude to Brigadier Generals Spears, Baird, and Carter and to Colonel de Courcy and to the gallant officers and soldiers of their respective commands. He closes the report by praising his personal staff and by expressing my deep obligations to Captain W F Patterson and the men of his command.

Cumberland Gap, 1862 William C. Davis, 1971. The much fought over passage through the Appalachians was won and lost in a fascinating campaign more like chess than war.
