Cultivating The Human Faculties James Barry 1741 1806 And The Society Of Arts:

Cultivating the Human Faculties Susan Bennett, 2008 This book contains a series of essays on different aspects of Irish painter James Barry's monumental cycle of paintings The Progress of Human Knowledge in the Great Room of the Royal Society of Arts. Barry's work is debated in the context of wider issues such as nationalism and improvement and publicity and patronage.

"The Writings of James Barry and the Genre of History Painting, 1775-1809" Liam Lenihan, 2017-07-05 Examining the literary career of the eighteenth century Irish painter James Barry 1741 1806 through an interdisciplinary methodology The Writings of James Barry and the Genre of History Painting 1775 1809 is the first full length study of the artist's writings. Liam Lenihan critically assesses the artist's own aesthetic philosophy about painting and printmaking and reveals the extent to which Barry wrestles with the significant stylistic transformations of the pre-eminent artistic genre of his age, history painting. Lenihan's book delves into the connections between Barry's writings and art and the cultural and political issues that dominated the public sphere in London during the American and French Revolutions. Barry's writings are read within the context of the political and aesthetic thought of his distinguished friends and contemporaries such as Edmund Burke, his first patron, Joshua Reynolds, his sometime friend and rival, Mary Wollstonecraft, and William Godwin, with whom he was later friends and his students and adversaries, William Blake and Henry Fuseli. Ultimately, Lenihan's interdisciplinary reading shows the extent to which Barry's faith in the classical tradition in general and the genre of history painting in particular is permeated by the hermeneutics of suspicion. This study explores and contextualizes Barry's attempt to rethink and remake the pre-eminent art form of his era.

The Cambridge History of Ireland: Volume 3, 1730-1880 James Kelly, Thomas Bartlett, 2018-04-26 The eighteenth and nineteenth centuries were an era of continuity as well as change. Though properly portrayed as the era of Protestant Ascendancy, it embraces two phases: the eighteenth century when that ascendancy was at its peak and the nineteenth century when the Protestant elite sustained a determined rear guard defence in the face of the emergence of modern Catholic nationalism. Employing a chronology that is not bound by traditional datelines, this volume moves beyond the familiar political narrative to engage with the economy, society, population, emigration, religion, language, state formation, culture, art, and architecture and the Irish abroad. It provides new and original interpretations of a critical phase in the emergence of a modern Ireland that while focused firmly on the island and its traditions, moves beyond the nationalist narrative of the twentieth century to provide a history of late early modern Ireland for the twenty-first century.

Arts and Minds Anton Howes, 2023-05-16 For almost 300 years an organisation has quietly tried to change almost every aspect of life in Britain That organisation is the Royal Society for the Encouragement of Arts Manufactures and Commerce often known simply as the Royal Society of Arts It has acted as Britain's private national improvement agency in every way imaginable essentially a society for the improvement of everything and anything This book is its history From its beginnings in a coffee house in the mid eighteenth century the Society has tried to change Britain's art industry laws music environment education and even culture It has sometimes even succeeded It has been a prize fund for innovations a platform for Victorian utilitarian reformers a convenor of disparate interest groups and the focal point for social movements There has never been an organisation quite like it constantly having to reinvent itself to find something new to improve The book rewrites many of the old official histories of the Society and updates them to the present day incorporating over half a century of further research into the periods they covered along with new insights into the organisation's evolution The book reveals the hidden and often surprising history of how a few public spirited people tried to make their country better offering lessons from their triumphs and their failures for all would be reformers today "James Barry, 1741-1806: History Painter" Tom

Dunne, 2017-07-05 Bringing into relief the singularity of Barry's unswerving commitment to his vision for history painting despite adverse cultural political and commercial currents these essays on Barry and his contemporaries offer new perspectives on the painter's life and career Contributors including some of the best known experts in the field of British eighteenth century studies set Barry's works and writings into a rich political and social context particularly in Britain Among other notable achievements the essays shed new light on the influence which Barry's radical ideology and his Catholicism had on his art they explore his relationship with Reynolds and Blake and discuss his aesthetics in the context of Burke and Wollstonecraft as well as Fuseli and Payne Knight The volume is an indispensable resource for scholars of eighteenth century British painting patronage aesthetics and political history Social Networks in the Long Eighteenth Century Ileana

Baird, 2014-11-19 In an attempt to better account for the impressive diversity of positions and relations that characterizes the eighteenth century world this collection proposes a new methodological frame one that is less hierarchical in approach and more focused instead on the nature of these interactions on their Addisonian usefulness declared goals and unintended results By shifting focus from a cultural historicist approach to sociability to the rhizomatic nature of eighteenth century associations this collection approaches them through new methodological lenses that include social network analysis assemblage and graph theory social media and digital humanities scholarship Imagining the eighteenth century world as a networked community rather than a competing one reflects a recent interest in novel forms of social interaction facilitated by new social media from Internet forums to various types of social networking sites and also signals the increasing involvement of academic communities in digital humanities projects that use new technologies to map out patterns of intellectual exchange As such the articles included in this collection demonstrate the benefits of applying interdisciplinary approaches to eighteenth century sociability and their role in shedding new light on the way public opinion was formed and ideas disseminated during pre modern times The issues addressed by our contributors are of paramount importance for understanding the eighteenth century culture of sociability They address among other things clubbing practices and social networking strategies political cultural gender based in the eighteenth century world the role of clubs and other associations in improving knowledge and behaviors conflicting views on publicity literary and political alliances and their importance for an emerging celebrity culture the role of cross national networks in launching pan European and transatlantic trends Romantic modes of sociability as well as the contribution of voluntary associations clubs literary salons communities of readers etc to the formation of the public sphere This collection demonstrates how relevant social networking strategies were to the context of the eighteenth century world and how similar they are to the congeries of new practices shaping the digital public sphere of today

"The British School of Sculpture, c.1760-1832 " Sarah Burnage,2017-07-05 The British School of Sculpture c 1760 1832 represents the first edited collection exploring one of the most significant moments in British art history returning to centre stage a wide range of sculpture considered for the first time by some of the most important scholars in the field Following a historical and historiographical introduction by the editors situating British sculpture in relation to key events and developments in the period and the broader scholarship on British art more generally in the period and beyond the book contains nine wide ranging case studies that consider the place of antique and modern sculpture in British country houses in the period monuments to heroes of commerce and the Napoleonic Wars the key debates fought around ideal sculpture at the Royal Academy the reception of British sculpture across Europe the reception of Hindu sculpture deriving from India in Britain and the relationship of sculpture to emerging industrial markets both at home and abroad Challenging characterisations of the period as neoclassical the volume reveals British sculpture to be a much more eclectic and various field of endeavour both in service of the state and challenging it and open to sources ranging from the newly arrived Parthenon Frieze to contemporary print culture
