People (Jen), State and Inter-state Relations Huipeng Shang, 2023-10-17 This book explores the relationship between the human constant Jen of the four large scale civilizational societies China the USA Japan and India and their international behavior response patterns and interaction with the international system The book analyzes the characteristics and limitations of the current international system as well as the way it is related to the Western type of human constant. It also analyzes the challenges facing China in its integration into the international system. This book aims to explore international relations from the combined psychological and cultural perspective. The key concept of this book is Jen, which contains a distinct Chinese cultural experience into the theory of international relations. Unlike other IR books that treat state as the main political actor, the book analyzes both the political aspects of state as an organizational entity and its civilizational aspects as a civilizational entity; hence it proposes a new ontology of international relations. By integrating the concept of Jen based on the unique Chinese cultural experience into the theory of international relations, the book reveals the interactive nature of relationship between the international system and human constant. The book explains the causal relationship between state's behavior and its human constant, analyzes the cultural characteristics of state actors and the international system, and tries to provide a new theoretical framework for understanding culture and modernity.

Political Islam and Human Security
 Shahram Akbarzadeh, Fethi Mansouri, 2009-03-26

In the wake of the September 11 and subsequent terrorist attacks, the academic and media commentaries on Islam, the religion and Islam, the basis for political ideology, have received an unprecedented high level of exposure and attention. The acts of political violence by extremist groups and the omnipresent war on terror have added fresh uncertainties to an already complex global order. Just as terrorism and counter terrorism are locked in a mutually reinforcing symbiosis, the sense of insecurity felt by Muslims and non Muslims alike is mutually dependent and has the potential to escalate. This general assessment holds true for Muslims living in the Muslim world and beyond. The pervasive sense of being under attack physically and culturally by the United States and its allies has contributed to a growing unease among Muslims and reinforced deep seated mistrust of the West. Public articulation of such misgivings has in turn lent credence to Western observers who posit an inherent antipathy between the West and the Muslim world. The subsequent policies that have emerged in this context of fear and mutual distrust have contributed to the vicious cycle of insecurity. The present volume is anchored in the current debates on the uneasy and potentially mutually destructive relationship between the Muslim world and certain West countries. It brings together leading international scholars in this interdisciplinary field to deal with such inter related questions as the nature of Islamism, the impact of the war on terror on the spread of militancy, the growing sense of being under siege by Muslim Diasporas and the many unintended ramifications of a security minded world order. This volume deliberately focuses on these issues both at a broad theoretical level but more importantly in the form of a number of prominent case studies including Indonesia, Algeria and Turkey. This edition includes a new introduction.
