Courtly Love in Medieval Manuscripts Pamela J. Porter, 2003-01-01 Illustrations drawn from medieval manuscripts provide insight into courtly love the stylised and idealistic relationship between a chivalrous knight and his lady In Pursuit of Perfection Joan M. Ferrante, George Economou, Frederick Goldin, 1975 This unique study is the result of the combined efforts of six eminently qualified scholars of medieval literature Through intensive analysis of the major genres lyric romance allegory and fabliau the authors trace the evolution of the fascinating and complex phenomenon known as courtly love The authors do not attempt to explain the historical origins of courtly love avoiding the controversies that have resulted in conflicting and confusing views but rather are committed to exploring its presence and meaning in medieval texts The collective approach to courtly love is also innovative in its elucidation of facets of the concept hitherto overlooked the subtle and complex relationship of the poet and the audience for example and the paradoxical rejection and subsequent affirmation of courtly love by the German poets The Riverside Chaucer Geoffrey Chaucer, Larry Dean Benson, 2008 The third edition of the definitive collection of Chaucer's Complete Works reissued with a new foreword by Christopher Cannon Since F N Robinson's second edition of the The Works of Geoffrey Chaucer was published in 1957 there has been a dramatic increase in Chaucer scholarship This has not only enriched our understanding of Chaucer's art but has also enabled scholars working for the first time with all the source material to recreate Chaucer's authentic texts For the third edition an international team of experts completely re edited all the works added glosses to appear on the page with the text and greatly expanded the introductory material explanatory notes textual notes bibliography and glossary In short the Riverside Chaucer is the fruit of many years study the most authentic and exciting edition available of Chaucer's Complete Works
