Comments For Preschool Progress Reports:

An Analysis of Kindergarten & Elementary Report Cards D. Keith Osborn, Janie Dyson Osborn, 1989 Developing
Standards-Based Report Cards Thomas R. Guskey, Jane M. Bailey, 2009-11-17 Guskey and Bailey offer realistic solutions to improving how educators communicate a student's academic progress to all stakeholders. Their work provides a faculty with the research step by step guidelines and reporting templates to begin the dialogue to develop a standards based report card. Without a doubt this work is a model for schools that want to improve their system of grading and reporting. It certainly has transformed ours. Jeffrey Erickson, Assistant Principal, Minnetonka High School, MN. Develop standards based report cards that are meaningful to students, parents, and educators. Although schools have moved toward standards based curriculum and instruction, grading practices and reporting systems have remained largely unchanged. Helping school leaders gain support for transitioning from traditional to standards based report cards, this book guides educators in aligning assessment and reporting practices with standards based education and providing more detailed reports of children's learning and achievement. A standards based report card breaks down each subject area into specific elements of learning to offer parents and educators a more thorough description of each child's progress toward proficiency. This accessible volume provides a clear framework for developing standards based report cards. Shows how to communicate with parents, students, and other stakeholders about changes. Illustrates how to achieve grading consistency without increasing teachers' workloads or violating their professional autonomy. Filled with examples of standards based report cards that can be adapted to a school's needs, this practical resource shows district and school administrators how to establish reporting practices that facilitate learning.

Working with Parents and Families in Early Childhood Education Ute Ward, Bob Perry, 2020-05-21 This book reports initiatives to listen to parents and families to ascertain what families believe and do as they seek to engage collaboratively with their children's educators and what educators and educational systems might do to facilitate and or establish barriers to such engagement. Parental engagement in children's learning and development has many positive benefits. However, in the current environments of accountability and performativity, which are pervading early childhood education in many countries, the opportunities for parents and other family members to be part of the development of respectful collaborative relationships with their children's early childhood educators are becoming more and more restricted. Many educators feel forced to choose between curriculum outcomes and parental engagement as both involve their time. There is a danger that the voices of parents and families in their children's early learning and development will not always be heard, seen, or fully understood. This volume addresses this important issue. Researchers, educators, and families will all benefit from this book to the ultimate benefit of the young children who are the future. This book was originally published as a special issue of the European Early Childhood Education Research Journal.

Recent Perspectives on Early Childhood Education and Care in Canada Larry Prochner, 2012-01-01 Early childhood education is critical for preparing children for success in formal school settings and as such is a major concern throughout the world This volume brings together ground breaking research in this area to help practitioners students policy makers curriculum designers and intervention program developers understand the latest ideas and advances in the field Recent Perspectives of Early Childhood Education and Care in Canada centres on three key themes The first provides a survey of historical social policy economic and provincial regulations and policies related to early childhood education and care The second focuses on issues related to children s learning curriculum and teachers The final theme addresses recent developments in government involvement in early childhood education and care that are unique to Canada The contributors to this volume demonstrate the pressing need that exists to further public discussion on early childhood education to help policymakers shape better decisions for Canadian families
