Computers For Librarians An Introduction To The Electronic Library Rodney Hebels:

Computers for Librarians Stuart J. Ferguson, Rodney Hebels, 2003-08-01 Computers for Librarians is aimed primarily at students of library and information management and at those library and information service professionals who feel the need for a book that will give them a broad overview of the emerging electronic library. It takes a top down approach starting with applications such as the Internet information sources and services provision of access to information resources and library management systems before looking at data management computer systems and technology data communications and networking and library systems development. It also provides an interesting set of case studies which help to put theoretical and technical issues into context. Computers for Librarians can be read as a survey of where we are in terms of the electronic library but it is also intended as an educational resource and includes self learning aids such as learning objectives keywords and review questions for each chapter. Digital Humanities and the Cyberspace Decade, 1990-2001 Claire Warwick, 2024-10-03 Setting out a history of cyberspace and its relationship with the discipline that was to become digital humanities this book is an account of an often forgotten period of internet history in the 1990s when this medium was in its infancy. It provides a detailed account of the concepts of cyberspace and the virtual which were characteristic of a perception that using the internet allowed users to enter a separate space from everyday life a world elsewhere. In doing so it argues that this libertarian idea of the internet framed it as a new frontier where the rules of the everyday world did not and should not apply and where the individual could find freedom. These early norms and the regrettable lack of regulation that was a consequence of them this book argues contributed to many of current issues with internet media including of toxic communication disinformation and over commercialisation.

Collection Management John Kennedy, 2006-06-01 The rapidly increasing reliance on digital rather than print based resources has not diminished the importance of library collection management but it has required significant modification in the thinking and the practice of collection managers who today usually have to consider their clients need for both print based and digital materials. This updated edition aims to provide a concise overview of the major elements of contemporary collection management of print and digital resources including policy formulation selection acquisition evaluation deselection and cooperative collecting in a way which aims to be of interest to the student and to any other reader seeking an understanding of a particularly dynamic area of librarianship. Much that has been previously published on collection management focuses on academic libraries particularly those in North America. This book places greater emphasis on the experiences of smaller public and special libraries and attempts to view its subject from the perspective of libraries in Australia and other countries geographically remote from North America and Western Europe. Dr John Kennedy has taught collection management at Charles Sturt University for over a decade and has produced several previous publications on the subject. Library Information

Libraries in the Twenty-First Century Stuart J. Ferguson, 2007-05-31 Libraries in the Twenty First Century brings together library educators and practitioners to provide a scholarly yet accessible overview of library and information management and the challenges that the twenty first century offers the information profession The papers in this collection illustrate the changing nature of the library as it evolves into its twenty first century manifestation The national libraries of Australia and New Zealand for instance have harnessed information and communication technologies to create institutions that are far more national even democratic in terms of delivery of service and sheer presence than their print based predecessors Aimed at practitioners and students alike this publication covers specific types of library and information agencies discusses specific aspects of library and information management and places developments in library and information services in a number of broad contexts socio economic ethico legal historical and educational Archives Sue McKemmish, Michael Piggott, Barbara Reed, Frank Upward, 2005-06-01 Archives Recordkeeping in Society introduces the significance of archives and the results of local and international research in archival science It explores the role of recordkeeping in various cultural organisational and historical contexts Its themes include archives as a web of recorded information new information technologies have presented dilemmas but also potentialities for managing of the interconnectedness of archives Another theme is the relationship between evidence and memory in archives and in archival discourse It also explores recordkeeping and accountability memory societal power and juridical power along with an examination of issues raised by globalisation and internationalisation The chapter authors are researchers practitioners and educators from leading Australian and international recordkeeping organisations each contributing previously unpublished research in and reflections on their field of expertise They include Adrian Cunningham Don Schauder Hans Hofman Chris Hurley Livia Iacovino Eric Ketelaar and Ann Pederson The book reflects broad Australian and international perspectives making it relevant worldwide It will be a particularly valuable resource for students of archives and records researchers from related knowledge disciplines sociology and history practitioners wanting to reflect further on their work and all those with an interest in archives and their role in shaping human activity and community culture Visionary Leaders for Information Arthur Winzenried, 2010-06-30 This book examines the theory behaviour connections and issues of modern information organizations Asking leading professionals where we may be in the near future it challenges both our perceptions and preconceptions Posing perhaps the most vital question of all Are we prepared Do we have a vision Bush, City, Cyberspace John Foster, Ern Finniss, Maureen Nimmo, 2005-06-01 Aimed at academic professional and general readers Bush city cyberspace provides a snapshot of the state of Australian children s and adolescent literature in the early twenty first century and an insight into its history In doing so it promotes a sense of where Australian literature for young people may be going and captures a literary and critical mood with which readers in Australia and beyond will identify The title of the work is intended to capture the fact that the field has changed dramatically in the century and a half that Australian children s literature has existed from the bush myths and heroism that inform the past and the present through the recognition that the vast majority of authors and readers live in cities to the third wave of cyberliterature that incorporates multimedia hypertext weblinks and e books none of which lessens the enduring enthusiasm of practitioners and readers for books Bush city cyberspace is not meant to be an encyclopedic volume Rather well known recent and or award winning works have been emphasised with the addition of others where these help to illuminate particular points The book is similar in coverage and approach to Australian Children s Literature An Exploration of Genre and Theme written by the same three authors and published by the Centre for Information Studies in 1995 In the intervening period much has changed in the field notable examples including the blurring of the dividing line between quality and popular literature the blending of genres the rise of a truly indigenous literature the demise to a significant extent of Outbackery in fiction the acceptance of multiculturalism as the norm and the advent of the literature of cyberspace with new methods and the sheer speed of communication between writer and reader All these trends and others are reflected in this work
