Disturbing Calculations Melanie Benson Taylor, 2010-01-25 In Thomas Wolfe s Look Homeward Angel Margaret Leonard says Never mind about algebra here That s for poor folks There s no need for algebra where two and two make five Moments of mathematical reckoning like this pervade twentieth century southern literature says Melanie R Benson In fiction by a large diverse group of authors including William Faulkner Anita Loos William Attaway Dorothy Allison and Lan Cao Benson identifies a calculation obsessed anxiety ridden discourse in which numbers are employed to determine social and racial hierarchies and establish individual worth and identity This narcissistic fetish of number speaks to a tangle of desires and denials rooted in the history of the South capitalism and colonialism No one evades participation in these disturbing equations says Benson wherein longing for increase accumulation and superiority collides with repudiation of the means by which material wealth is attained Writers from marginalized groups including African Americans Native Americans women immigrants and the poor have deeply internalized and co opted methods and tropes of the master narrative even as they have struggled to wield new voices unmarked by the discourse of the colonizer Having nominally emerged from slavery's legacy the South is now situated in the agonized space between free market capitalism and social progressivism. Food and the Novel in Nineteenth-Century America Mark McWilliams, 2012-06-16

Food and the Novel in Nineteenth Century America revolves around the 1840 presidential election when according to campaign slogans candidates were what they ate. Skillfully deploying the rhetoric of republican simplicity the belief that plain dress food and manners were signs of virtue in the young republic William Henry Harrison defeated Martin Van Buren by aligning the incumbent with the European luxuries of p t de foie gras and soupe la reine while maintaining that he survived on raw beef without salt. The effectiveness of such claims reflected not only the continuing appeal of the frontier and the relatively primitive nature of American cooking but also a rhetorical struggle to define how eating habits and culinary practices fit into ideas of the American character. From this crucial mid century debate the book's argument reaches back to examine the formation of the myth of republican simplicity in revolutionary America and forward to the popularization of cosmopolitan sophistication during the Gilded Age. Drawing heavily on cookbooks domestic manuals travel writing and the popular press this historical framework structures a discussion of ways novelists use food to locate characters within their fictional worlds evoking or contesting deeply held social beliefs about gender class and race. In addition to mid century novelists like Hawthorne Melville Stowe and Warner the book examines popular and canonical novels by writers as diverse as Lydia Maria Child James Fenimore Cooper Susanna Rowson Catharine Sedgwick Mark Twain Edith Wharton and Harriet Wilson. Some of these authors also wrote domestic manuals and cookbooks. In addition McWilliams draws on a wide range of such work by William Alcott Catharine Beecher Eliza Leslie Fannie Merrit Farmer Maria Parloa and others.
