Lesson 1 - What is the digestive system?

Oesophagus

When the tongue pushes the bolus towards the back of your mouth, it enters the oesophagus.

The oesophagus is a long muscular tube that connects your mouth to your stomach.

Peristalsis occurs in the oesophagus, which is when the muscles contract in waves along the bolus.

This pushes the bolus all the way down the oesophagus and into the stomach.

An adult's oesophagus is approx. 25cm long & sits about 10cm below the throat.

Small Intestine

The small intestine is actually the longer of the two intestines, measuring approximately six metres in length. It is called the small intestine because it is a thinner tube than the large intestine. The small intestine absorbs all the nutrients from the food for us to use in our bodies.

The small intestine has two friends that help it do its job.

Liver

The liver produces a liquid called bile which is released into the small intestine which helps absorb fat from food.

Pancreas

The pancreas produces enzymes which are released into the small intestine that help break down fat, protein and carbohydrate in the food.

Food can stay in your small intestine for 1 - 4 hours.
