Measuring Capital in the New Economy Carol Corrado, John Haltiwanger, Daniel Sichel, 2009-02-15 As the accelerated technological advances of the past two decades continue to reshape the United States economy intangible assets and high technology investments are taking larger roles These developments have raised a number of concerns such as how do we measure intangible assets Are we accurately appraising newer high technology capital The answers to these questions have broad implications for the assessment of the economy's growth over the long term for the pace of technological advancement in the economy and for estimates of the nation's wealth In Measuring Capital in the New Economy Carol Corrado John Haltiwanger Daniel Sichel and a host of distinguished collaborators offer new approaches for measuring capital in an economy that is increasingly dominated by high technology capital and intangible assets As the contributors show high tech capital and intangible assets affect the economy in ways that are notoriously difficult to appraise In this detailed and thorough analysis of the problem and its solutions the contributors study the nature of these relationships and provide guidance as to what factors should be included in calculations of different types of capital for economists policymakers and the financial and accounting communities alike Automotive Manual Electrical-radio Wiring Diagrams E.I.
