Chang, 2015-10-30 This book contributes to an understanding of how globalization affects the lives of ordinary people Since the middle of the twentieth century Taiwan has undergone a remarkably rapid change from a poor mostly rural society to a thriving industrial mostly urban one Because of its openness to global influences it has been called the first transnational culture Women have been especially affected by the new opportunities available as this transition has occurred We focus on two generations of women mothers who came of age before the transition and their daughters who became adults as the island was emerging onto the top tier of industrial economies We interviewed both generations in five families obtaining first a biography of each followed by a detailed inventory of their everyday lifestyle activities In analyzing these two sets of data a combination unique in the literature we show the ways in which there has been an intermixing of transnational and local cultural elements The result is a flowering of distinct identities as women can choose from a greater variety of lifestyle options by virtue of the increased awareness of the outside world To make sense of this unfolding process mostly concepts associated with theories of globalization are employed but in some cases reformulated Our approach to these issues can lay the groundwork for a more penetrating understanding of changing lifestyles in an increasingly globalized world in which transnational influences and traditional concerns are woven into a complex web of cultural responses Multiple Early
