Narrative Innovation and Cultural Rewriting in the Cold War Era and After M. Cornis-Pope, 2016-04-30 Narrative Innovation and Cultural Rewriting undertakes a systematic study of postmodernism s responses to the polarized ideologies of the postwar period that have held cultures hostage to a confrontation between rival ideologies abroad and a clash between champions of uniformity and disruptive others at home Considering a broad range of narrative projects and approaches from polysystemic fiction to surfiction postmodern feminism and multicultural postcolonial fiction this book highlights their solutions to ontological division real vs imaginary wordly and other worldly sociocultural oppositions of race class gender and narratological dualities imitation vs invention realism vs formalism A thorough rereading of the best experimental work published in the US since the mid 1960s reveals the fact that innovative fiction has been from the beginning concerned with redefining the relationship between history and fiction narrative and cultural articulation Stepping back from traditional polarizations innovative novelists have tried to envision an alternative history of irreducible particularities excluded middles and creative intercrossings

Civil Defense Begins at Home Laura McEnaney, 2020-10-06 Dad built a bomb shelter in the backyard Mom stocked the survival kit in the basement and the kids practiced ducking under their desks at school This was family life in the new era of the A bomb This was civil defense In this provocative work of social and political history Laura McEnaney takes us into the secretive world of defense planners and the homes of ordinary citizens to explore how postwar civil defense turned the front lawn into the front line The reliance on atomic weaponry as a centerpiece of U S foreign policy cast a mushroom cloud over everyday life American citizens now had to imagine a new kind of war one in which they were both combatants and targets It was the Federal Civil Defense Administration's job to encourage citizens to adapt to their nuclear present and future As McEnaney demonstrates the creation of a civil defense program produced new dilemmas about the degree to which civilian society should be militarized to defend itself against internal and external threats Conflicts arose about the relative responsibilities of state and citizen to fund and implement a home front security program The defense establishment's resolution was to popularize and privatize military preparedness The doctrine of self help defense demanded that citizens become autonomous rather than rely on the federal government for protection Families would reconstitute themselves as paramilitary units that could quash subversion from within and absorb attack from without Because it solicited an unprecedented degree of popular involvement the FCDA offers a unique opportunity to explore how average citizens community leaders and elected officials both participated in and resisted the creation of the national security state Drawing on a wide variety of archival sources McEnaney uncovers the broad range of responses to this militarization of daily life and reveals how government planners and ordinary people negotiated their way at the dawn of the atomic age Her work sheds new light on the important postwar debate about what total military preparedness would actually mean for American society
