The Facade of Allegiance: Bin Ladin's Dubious Pledge to Mullah Omar

THE RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN al-Qa'ida and the Afghan Taliban is of critical concern to the U.S. foreign policy community. It has repeatedly been cited by the current administration as the central justification for U.S. military engagement in Afghanistan.¹ Yet the precise nature of this relationship remains a matter of debate among specialists.² While some argue that al-Qa'ida and the Afghan Taliban have effectively merged, others point to signs that their respective global and nationalist goals have increasingly put them at odds.³ Behind this debate is the fear that if the Taliban were to regain control of Afghanistan, it would renew the close relationship that it had with al-Qa'ida prior to 9/11 and thus increase al-Qa'ida's capacity to threaten the United States.

Yet a historical account by an insider who worked for both organizations in the 1990s challenges one of the key assumptions underlying this fear—that Usama bin Ladin had personally sworn allegiance (bay'at) to Mullah Omar—revealing that al-Qa'ida's early relations with the Taliban regime were much rockier than is commonly assumed. This remarkable first-person account opens a unique window on a critical moment in the early history of al-Qa'ida's relations with the Taliban, depicting these relations as deeply contentious and threatened by mutual distrust and divergent ambitions.

1 In the words of U.S. General Stanley A. McChrystal, commander of NATO forces in Afghanistan, "Rolling back the Taliban is a pre-requisite to the ultimate defeat of al-Qaeda." For more, see his statement to the U.S. House Armed Services Committee on December 8, 2009.

2 For a sense of the spectrum of opinion on this issue, see "The al-Qaeda-Taliban Nexus," Council on Foreign Relations, November 25, 2009.

3 On these respective positions, see Peter Bergen, "The Front: The Taliban-Al Qaeda Merger," The New Republic,

Ctc Sentinel Volume 2 Issue 1 January 2009 Al Qaidas Five Aspects Of Power:

Fault Lines in Global Jihad Assaf Moghadam, Brian Fishman, 2011-05-10 This book deals with the causes nature and impact of the divisions within the jihadi movement and the splits between jihadis and other Islamic groups Fault Lines in Global Jihad offers a systematic and comprehensive examination of the broad range of divisions that contribute to the weakening of the jihadi movement It separates these divisions into two broad categories namely fissures dividing jihadis themselves and divisions separating jihadis from other Muslim and Islamist groups The first part of the book covers intra jihadi divisions highlighting tensions and divisions over strategic tactical and organizational issues The second part of the book addresses several important case studies of jihadi altercations with other Muslim and Islamist groups of non jihadi persuasion such as the Muslim Brotherhood Hamas and the Shii community More than simply an enumeration of problems and cracks within al Qa ida and its cohorts this book addresses critical policy issues of relevance to the broader struggle against the global jihadi movement The editors conclude that these divisions have and continue to weaken al Qa ida but neither in an automatic nor in an exclusive fashion for these divisions render the global jihadi movement simultaneously vulnerable and more resilient This book will be of much interest to students of jihadism terrorism and political violence Islamism security studies and IR in general

but they are incomplete and when assessed in isolation lead to false conclusions Any assessment of al Qa ida must consider al Qa ida s goals and a variety of metrics that capture all aspects of the organization s power This article examines al Qa ida across five factors that encompass all aspects of the group s power 1 the power to destroy 2 the power to inspire 3 the power to humiliate 4 the power to command and 5 the power to unify These aspects of power are not unique to al Qa ida but they are particularly relevant for a terrorist organization with global ambitions and reach
