Consuming China Kevin Latham, Stuart Thompson, Jakob Klein, 2012-08-21 Post Mao China has been characterized in literature and the media as a burgeoning consumer society. Consuming China investigates this characterization by examining the cultural significance of consumption and consumerism in the People's Republic of China today. In questioning the notion of consumption, this impressive work suggests that it is not simply a symptom of economic reform within China, neither a product of the emergence and transformation of contemporary Chinese capitalism. Rather, the essays offer a new perspective on Chinese consumption by focusing on more than just consumerism, looking at the practices of consumption in relation to different manifestations of social and cultural change. Drawing on case studies from Taiwan, Hong Kong and the People's Republic of China, Consuming China affords a greater understanding of the practice of Chinese consumption and will appeal to China scholars and anthropologists and to those with an interest in cultural and gender studies.

An Introductory Study on China's Cultural Transformation in Recent Times Yunzhi Geng, 2014-10-22 This book examines in detail the basic trajectory of the cultural transformation and brings to light the extrinsic conditions and intrinsic mechanisms involved. It focuses on the period from after the Opium Wars to the New Culture Movement, as the New Culture Movement can be considered a pivotal phase in the cultural transformation of modern day China. The New Culture Movement was a revolutionary eruption triggered by the accumulation of all the new qualitative cultural factors since the Opium Wars. Superficially, the movement's goal seemed to be to overthrow the traditional culture. But in essence, its true objective was to conduct an overall screening of that culture. The book elaborates a broad variety of points in this context, including the ideological and cultural evolution following the Opium Wars, the pressing challenges faced by Zhong Ti, the initial shaping of social, public and cultural spaces and major trends in ideological and cultural transformation at the end of the Qing Dynasty, the political disarray and conflicts between the new and old ideology in the first years of the Republic, the rise of the New Culture Movement and the role of conservatism in the transition to a modern culture.
