Chateau, B. Lapillonne, 2012-12-06 The first oil crisis of 1973-74 and the questions it raised in the economic and social fields drew attention to energy issues Industrial societies accustomed for two decades or more to energy sufficiently easy to produce and cheap to consume that it was thought to be inexhaustible began to question their energy future The studies undertaken at that time and since on a national regional or world level were over optimistic The problem seemed simple enough to solve On the one hand a certain number of resources coal the abundance of which was discovered or rather rediscovered oil source of all the problems In fact the problems seemed to come if not from oil itself an easy explanation then from those who produced it without really owning it and from those who owned it without really controlling it natural gas second only to oil and less compromised uranium all of whose promises had not been kept but whose resources were not in question solar energy multiform and really inexhaustible thermonuclear fusion and geothermal energy etc On the other hand energy consumption though excessive perhaps was symbolic of progress development and increased well being The originality of the energy policies set up since 1974 lies in the fact they no longer aimed to produce or import more but to consume less They sought and still seek what might be emphatically called the control of energy consumption or rather the control of energy demand
