LIFE IN ANCIENT ROME

The Romans liked eating. They didn't use knives and forks. They used their hands to eat. They didn't use chairs at lunch. There were beds round the tables. Take away was popular because there weren't kitchens in a lot of houses.

There weren't baths in the houses. People went to public baths. There were hot and cold baths. Women used the baths in the morning and men in the afternoon.

The theatre was very popular. The theatres were very big and all the Roman actors were men.

Sport was popular and a favourite sport was chariot racing.

The Roman Games were in a stadium. But the Roman Games were different from the Olympic Games. At the Roman Games men killed each other.

Ancient Rome Monica M. Bontty,2020-03-17 This book shares little known facts from and excerpts of primary source documents to correct popular misconceptions about Ancient Rome and to show how those misconceptions became widespread Roman personalities and history have always had a larger than life profile in American popular culture but most people think of this ancient civilization as merely decadent cruel and elitist Most of our stereotypical conceptions of the empire and its people however are wrong This book corrects popular misconceptions about the ancient Roman world thus making ancient history relevant and accessible to modern readers and allowing modern critics of American politics and society to draw accurate comparisons Each chapter discusses how a particular misconception developed spread and evolved into what we now believe to be the historical truth Topics discussed include crucifixion the destruction of Carthage Julius Caesar s last words and Roman hygiene Excerpts from primary source documents provide evidence of both the rise of the historical fictions and the truths behind the myths
