Denial Nature Environmental Philosophy Capitalism:

The Denial of Nature Arne Johan Vetlesen, 2015-02-11 A study of the increasingly precarious relationship between humans and nature this book seeks to go beyond work already contributed to the environmental movement It does so by highlighting the importance of experiencing rather than merely theorizing nature while realizing that such experience is becoming increasingly rare thus reinforcing the estrangement from nature that is a source of its ongoing human caused destruction In his original approach to environmental philosophy the author argues for the reinstatement of nature's value outside of its exploitative usefulness for human ends Such a perspective emphasizes the extent to which the environmental problem is a concrete reality requiring urgent action based on a multi sensuous appreciation of humans dependence on nonhuman lifeforms Designed as an accompaniment to undergraduate and postgraduate research The Denial of Nature draws on empirically informed literature from the social sciences to examine what life is really like for humans and nature in the era of global capitalism The book contends that capitalist society exploits nature both in the form of human capital and natural capital more relentlessly than any other and offers an environmental philosophy which actively opposes current developments Through discussions of the work of Teresa Brennan Theodor Adorno Martin Heidegger and Hans Jonas and through a radical critique of the nature deficit in Jürgen Habermas theory of capitalist modernity The Denial of Nature relies on insights from Critical Realism to bring together several seldom linked philosophies and suggest a new approach to the heavily discussed question of environmental ethics Arne Johan Vetlesen is Professor of Philosophy at the University of Oslo Norway and the author of twenty books among them Perception Empathy and Judgment An Inquiry into the Preconditions of Moral Performance 1994 Closeness An Ethics with Heidegger 1997 Evil and Human Agency 2005 and A Philosophy of Pain 2010

Current Challenges of Environmental Philosophy, 2023-09-04 It is extremely difficult to seek new paths in the twilight of our former idols ideals and visions of a happy and successful life The authors of the book invite the reader to embark on this journey in a free spirited manner and to look at the challenges posed by the new climate regime from different perspectives Whether one accepts the concept of the Anthropocene as a starting point or rather as an opportunity for constructive criticism readers will be fully engaged by thinking through historical philosophical scientific political social as well as educational problems

Critical Theory and New Materialisms Hartmut Rosa, Christoph Henning, Arthur Bueno, 2021-06-14 Bringing together authors from two intellectual traditions that have so far generally developed independently of one another critical theory and new materialism this book addresses the fundamental differences and potential connections that exist between these two schools of thought With a focus on some of the most pressing questions of contemporary philosophy and social theory in particular those concerning the status of long standing and contested separations between matter and life the biological and the symbolic passivity and agency affectivity and rationality it shows that recent developments in both traditions point to important convergences between them and thus prepare the ground for a more direct confrontation and cross fertilization The first volume to promote a dialogue between critical theory and new materialism this collection explores the implications for contemporary debates on ecology gender biopolitics post humanism economics and aesthetics As such it will appeal to philosophers social and political theorists and sociologists with interests in contemporary critical theory and materialism Cosmologies of the Anthropocene Arne Johan Vetlesen, 2019-03-28 This book engages with the classic philosophical question of mind and matter seeking to show its altered meaning and acuteness in the era of the Anthropocene Arguing that matter and more broadly the natural world has been misconceived since Descartes it explores the devastating impact that this has had in practice in the West As such alternatives are needed whether philosophical ones such as those offered by figures such as Whitehead and Nagel or posthumanist ones such as those developed by Barad and Latour Drawing on recent anthropological work ignored by philosophers and sociologists alike the author considers a radical alternative cosmology animism understood as panpsychism in practice This understanding of mind and matter of culture and nature is then turned against present day posthumanist critiques of what the Anthropocene amounts to showing them up as philosophically misguided politically mute and ethically wanting A ground breaking reconceptualization of the natural world and our treatment of it Cosmologies of the Anthropocene will appeal to scholars of sociology social theory philosophy and anthropology with interests in our understanding of and relationship with nature

Animal Lives and Why They Matter Arne Johan Vetlesen, 2022-10-25 This book engages with the changing ways in which we as a society and culture look upon and interact with animals stressing how much animals differ among themselves An invitation to appreciate the peculiar role of animals in telling important if uncomfortable truths about who we are and where we are heading namely towards a world so much poorer in cultural moral and biological diversity as a result of the ongoing decimation of so many other species Drawing on a variety of thought ranging from that of Midgley Plumwood and Murdoch to Levinas Derrida and Habermas from ecophilosophers to conservation biologists Animal Lives and Why They Matter asks how we have come to this and what an alternative less destructive approach to our now precarious coexistence with animals might look like Spanning the disciplines of philosophy psychology and anthropology this enquiry into various cross species relationships and encounters will appeal to scholars and students across the humanities and social sciences with interests in philosophy ethics human animal interaction and environmental thought Climate Change and the Symbol Deficit in the Christian Tradition Jan-Olav Henriksen, 2022-02-24 Exploring how the climate crisis discloses the symbol deficit in the Christian tradition this book argues that Christianity is rich in symbols that identify and address the failures of humans and the obstacles that prevent humans from doing well while positive symbols that can engage people in constructive action seem underdeveloped Henriksen examines the potential of the Christian tradition to develop symbols that can engage peoples in committed and sustained action to prevent further crisis To do so he argues that we need symbols that engage both intellectually and emotionally and which enhance our perception of belonging in relationships with other humans be it both in the present and in the future According to Henriksen the deficit can only be obliterated if we can develop symbols that have some root or resonance in the Christian tradition provide concrete and specified guidance of agency engage people both emotionally and intellectually and finally open up to visions for a moral agency that provide positive motivations for caring about environmental conditions as a whole

Pedagogy in the Anthropocene Michael Paulsen, Jan Jagodzinski, Shé M. Hawke, 2022-03-12 This book explores new pedagogical challenges and potentials of the Anthropocene era The authors argue that this new epoch with an unstable climate new kinds of globally spreading viruses and new knowledges calls for a new way of educating and an alertness to new philosophies of education and pedagogical imaginations thoughts and practices Addressing the linkages between the Anthropocene and Pedagogy across a broad pedagogical spectrum that is both formal and informal the editors and their contributors emphasize a re imagining of education that serves to deepen our understanding of the capacities and values of life

Contemporary Christian-Cultural Values Cecilia Nahnfeldt, Kaia S. Rønsdal, 2021-05-30 This book reconstructs the connection between religion and migration drawing on post colonial perspectives to shed light on what religion can contribute to migrant encounters Examining the resources and motives for hospitality as lived in Christian contexts in the Nordic region it addresses the content of talk about religion in public discourse the concept having become something of an empty signifier in debates surrounding migration Multidisciplinary in approach this volume demonstrates that religion is not in fact an empty signifier but gains substance through practice and interpretation Considering the undeveloped potentiality of religion and the manner in which the unseen religious perspective in secularity becomes manifest in practice this volume will appeal to social scientists and scholars of religion with interests in migration refugee studies theology and Christian practice

Religion as Orientation and Transformation Jan-Olav Henriksen, 2017-05-12 Religions are not primarily expressed in people's heads and their thoughts but in what they do People use religious symbols in order to orientate or change themselves In this way religion is related to all realms of human life Jan Olav Henriksen shows that only
