Correspondance Belgian Surrealism Francophone Library:

Correspondance Jan Baetens, Michael Kasper, 2015 Correspondance is the name of a Belgian Surrealist magazine published in 1924-1925 by Paul Noug, Camille Goemans and Marcel Lecomte. It is considered as seminal as Breton's Surrealist Manifesto 1924. The texts were tart, obscure responses to the arcane literary debates of the time, in particular those underway in Andr  Breton's circle in Paris. Twenty-two issues of Correspondance were printed in a modernist typeface on different color papers and were distributed by mail to selected recipients. Unlike their Parisian associates, the Belgians made an explicit choice against the book as a host medium for literary and other experiments. Noug, the chief theorist, and his colleagues remained suspicious throughout their careers, not only of commercialized literature but also of literature itself, which they saw as a means to political action, never a goal in itself. Although little recognized, Belgian Surrealists and Correspondance, their earliest manifestation, remain anticipatory and influential in modernist writing practice, especially for their ephemeral style of publishing proto mail art and their intentional plagiarisms, precursor to Situationist d tournement.

An interrogation of the notion of space in Surrealist theory and philosophy, this study analyzes the manifestations of space in the paintings and writings done in the framework of the Surrealist Movement. Haim Finkelstein introduces the screen as an important spatial paradigm that clarifies and extends the understanding of Surrealism as it unfolds in the 1920s, exploring the screen and layered depth as fundamental structuring principles associated with the representation of the mental space and of the internal processes that eventually came to be linked with the Surrealist concept of psychic automatism. Extending the discussion of the concepts at stake for Surrealist visual art into the context of film literature and criticism, this study sheds new light on the way film thinking permeates Surrealist thought and aesthetics. In early chapters, Finkelstein looks at the concept of the screen as emblematic of a strand of spatial apprehension that informs the work of young writers in the 1920s, such as Robert Desnos and Louis Aragon. He goes on to explore the way the spatial character of the serial films of Louis Feuillade intimated to the Surrealists a related mode of vision associated with perception of the mystery and the Marvelous lurking behind the surfaces of quotidian reality. The dialectics informing Surrealist thought with regard to the surfaces of the real, with walls, doors, and windows as controlling images, are shown to be at the basis of Andr  Breton's notion of the picture as a window. Contrary to the traditional sense of this metaphor, Breton's window is informed by the screen paradigm with its surface serving as a locus of a dialectics of transparency and opacity permeability and reflectivity The main aesthetic and conceptual issues that come up in the consideration of Breton's window metaphor lay the groundwork for an analysis of the work of Giorgio de Chirico Ren Magritte Max Ernst André Breton and Joan Miró the concluding chapter considers Catalog of the Library of the Museum of Modern Art: Klas Museum of Modern Art (New York, N.Y.).
